ON THE TOWN

DIZZY? MISS LIZZY?

THIN LIZZY were back in town at Hammersmith last Sunday, and received a positively orgasmic welcome home. With the year's best single under their belts, they notched up probably the best reception anyone's landed there this year, following their Stateside megatriumph as chronicled in last week's ish.

Now the bad news for folks who missed it: there's no live work lined up for Lizzy in the near future (what with Phil Lynott still under the weather) but it's obvious that their combination of strength and lyricism has finally brought them their well-earned and long-overdue acknowledgement as a Grade A concert band.

Knowarramean?

Pic: CHALKIE DAVIS

LYNOTT: Sunday night they'll be dressed to kill . . .